

Ian Fish, M. SC. (Community Health Sciences) Partner & Canadian Healthcare Services Leader, IBM Global Business Services

Ian Fish is IBM's Partner and Canadian Healthcare Services Leader. He has over 25 years of public and private sector experience working with doctors, nurses and government leaders creating and delivering transformational change to the Canadian health industry. He is viewed as a strategic and entrepreneurial thinker who encourages innovation and creativity that is practical, and that can be distilled into a tactical and achievable operational plan. His experience includes negotiating large-scale organizational change driven by new delivery models, partnerships, strategic sourcing and the introduction of new technologies and processes. Ian is effective at building new health care initiatives and rallying participation and collaboration across a diverse set of stakeholders including clinicians, researchers, government, government agencies and private sector partners.
